Ottawa summit

Rapport among 'Big7' holds key to success

beginning Sunday night leaders of seven non-Communist industrialized countries will focus in Ottawa on pressing economic issues, but wbether they can come up with clear-cut decisions is open to question.

VOL. VI NO. 233

The United States, France, West Germany, Britain, Japan, Italy and host Canada are all concerned over a global recession which is a mix of high inflation and interest rates, widespread unemployment and slow economie growth.

And, as they gather in Ottawa for their annual economie summit, they are all agreed that they must try to find ways to improve the world's economy. But they face a number of burdles as they go into their meetings, being beld under stringent security at the secluded Montebello resort hotel outside the Cana-

As a first step, they have to get to know one another. Only three of the leaders, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Prime Ministers Pierre Trudeau of Canada and Margaret Thatcher of Britain, have been on the world scene for very long.

U.S. President Reagan, French President Francois Mitterrand and Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki of Japan and Giovanni Spadolini of Italy have been in office less than six months and bave never attended an economie summit. All the leaders come to Ottawa with divergent views on how to tackle economic problems, and their political philosophies vary widely as well.

Officials believe the key to the summit will be how the seven get along. Trudeau summed up the feeling when he said this week after greeting his old friend, Schmidt: "We (the summit participants) ... must get to know each other well enough in a situation of need to pick up the telephone."

If the seven strike up a good relationship, it will provide impetus for dealing with global economic problems and developing cobesive policies on various political Issues.

Except for Schmidt, who has been in Ottawa the last two days for pre-summit discussions with Trudeau, all the other leaders are due to arrive after midday Sunday.

President Reagan and Mitterrand have arranged to have a private talk ahead of the

Italy appoints 5 army chiefs

ROME, July 18 (R) - The Italian govemment appointed five new armed forces chiefs Saturday in an unprecedented peacetime reshuffle, Gen. Vittorio Santini, commander of NATO ground forces in southern Europe, was named chief of the defense staff replacing Adm. Giovanni Torrisi, who resigned 10 days ago following implication in the scandal over the P-2 secret Masonic Lodge.

New chiefs of staff of the Army, Navy, Carabinicri and customs police were also named. The former head of the customs, a semi-military body, also resigned after the Masonic scandal while the heads of the army and navy had both reached retiring age.

Defense Minister Lelio Lagorio, referring last week to the impending reshuffle, said the new military chiefs would be men of "a high degree of professionality, a spotless background and who can guarantee their loyalty to the republie." Gen. Umberto Cappuzzo, head of the Carabinieri, was promoted to chief of the army staff, and Adm. Angelo Monassi, commander of NATO naval forces m southern Europe, was named chief of the naval staff.

Gen. Lorenzo Valditara, the northeast regional military commander, took over the Carabinieri post, and Gen. Nicola Chiari, of the fifth armored corps, the customs police. Heads of the secret services were also involved in the Masonic affair but their replacements were not named Saturday. The Rome newspaper Il Messaggero said Italy's military establishment had seen no comparable shake-up since the defeat by Austrian Force Caporetto during the first world war.

Work hours cut to 39 in France

PARIS, July 18 (AP) - French Labor and Management reached an historic accord Saturday, taking the first step toward meeting Socialist President François Mitterrand's goal of a 35-hour work week by agreeing to teduce the traditional 40-hour week to 39.

Final details, as they pertain to about 80 different industries in the country, are to he worked out later and the whole plan must be confirmed by parliament. But after a marathon 16-hour final negotiating session that hroke up in the wee hours Saturday morning, the two sides agreed to the first reduction in work time since the 40-hour week was legalized in 1936.

The accord, reached between the unions and the French Employers' Association known as the Patronat — calls for a one-hour reduction in the work week, a fifth week of paid vacation and a limit of 130 hours annually of overtime that does not require authorization by labor inspectors. One of the major planks in Mitterrand's election campaign this year was a commitment to reducing the work week.

summit's formal opening dinner, and officials while be watching eagerly for the results of this first meeting between the conservative U.S. leader and his Socialist French counterpart. The two men have adopted contrasting approaches in their economic program, with Mitterrand wanting to concentrate on reducing unemployment and Reagan focusing on the battle against inflation.

Reagan is likely to reiterate U.S. concern over the inclusion of Communists in the French cahinet, but at the same time be is known to be pleased at the French leader's strong expression of support for NATO.

Trudeau initially heralded the summit as the most important since the annual sessions began in 1975, but he now appears to have lowered his expectations. He told reporters be did not think there would be any specifie decisions, but expected some positive indications to poor nations that the seven industrialized states wanted to help them.

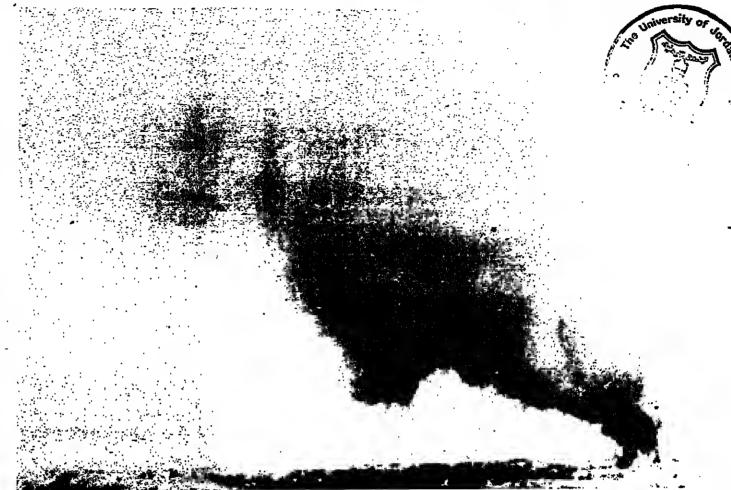

Trudeau stressed, bowever, that there might not be any immediate agreement on increased aid from the richer countries. Officials believe a clearer picture on this question will bave to wait till the 'North-Sonth' summit in Mexico in mid-October.

The high level of U.S. interest rates is expected to be the most touchy issue at the Ottawa cooference, which ends Tuesday. Some officials say it could cause strains behind the scenes, but will not be raised publ-

Trudeau and Schmidt have indicated that they will play an important part in the summit, emphasizing after their talks that they agree on many of the issues which will be raised.

The West German leader is sure to hring up West European concern about relations with the Soviet Union and fears that the strong position President Reagan has adopted could work against military equilibrium with Moscow. He has stressed that continued dialogue is needed to steady East-West links. The United States for its part will re-state its concerns over signs of growing pacifism in some West European countries.

The latest Israeli strike into Lebanon, which the lebanese government said claimed 300 lives, is sure to be raised at the summit. The leaders will be eager to sound out the latest U.S. views on the situation.

Cabinet reshuffle predicted

Poll debacle may widen Tory policy split

LONDON, July 18 (AFP) - A miserable performance by the Conservative Party in this week's Warrington hy-election risks widening the government split over Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's tough economic policies. Two rival factions are at work within the Thatcher cabinet. Being buffeted by its most serious crisis since coming to

On one side are the hardliners beaded by hawk-in-chief Mrs. Thatcher and surrounded, in all the key posts, by the likes of Sir Geoffrey Howe (chancellor of the exchequer), Sir Keith Joseph (industry minister) and John Nott (defense minister). On the other side are the so-called "wets", led by Employment minister Jim Prior. His allies hold less sensitive posts, such as Peter Walker (agriculture minister) and Sir Ian Gilmour (Lord Privy Seal charged with European Common Market questions).

Between these factions are two distinguished party memhers who, without being truly moderate, want the government to tone down its economic policy, using the Warrington result as an argument. They are Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington and leader of the bouse Francis Pym. While the wets argue that an efficient program to fight unemployment is worth any sacrifice, the hardliners wholeheartedly disagree - and they hold all the economic portfolios.

Sir Kelth Joseph, having lost much of his clout with Margaret Thatcher because of recent poor health and falling popularity, has heen overtaken in the "Thatcher favorities" league by Sir Geoffrey Howe and hy Treasury Secretary Leon Brittan who are leading the fight against Jim Prior. Prior is convinced that the government's social, economic and political ills are a result of an excessively tough economic policy. His main problem is that most backbench tory M.P.s support the bardiners.

Mrs. Thatcher has managed to rid herself of Norman St. John Sievas, the former leader of the house who expressed his "wet" opinions too loudly, and of Keith Speed, the navy secretary of state who spoke out against defense cuts. But she is stuck with Prior and his allies because they are virtually "barons" of the Tory Party. Political commentators nonetheless expect some sort of cabinet reshuffle in the coming months, with the removal of a few moderates and inclusion of a

They feel it would be a good opportunity to bid farewell to Sir Keith Joseph, 63, who will shortly undergo surgery for a hernia and whose appearance on official tours these days is all too often greeted with eggs and

Once this reshuffle was over, Mrs. Thatcher would doubtless require a pledge of loyalty from the survivors, and moderates would have to shut up or go. Her rigorous anti-inflation monetarist policies will be continued, with the inevitable rise in unemployment. Many pundits forecast that electoral disaster is therefore inevitable.

They say Mrs. Thatcher played up the division within the opposition Labor Party, believing the rise of Labor's left wing would frighten the moderate electorate and lead to a further swing away from Lahor at the next election.

From now on, there are three major polincal forces — the Conservatives, torn by their cabinet divisions: Labor, suffering similarly between moderates and leftists: and the Social Democrats, courting the Liberal Party for a possible electoral pact though they still have no clear program. Electors will be called to choose between them not later than May 1984,

U.K.staff to hold poll on new offer

LONDON, July 18 (AP) — Britain's 530,000 civil servants will ballot over the next two weeks to accept or reject an improved government offer, aimed to end a 19-week-old pay dispute that is costing taxpayers millions of dollars a week. Rejection will mean an all-out strike, union officials said. The government originally offered seven percent to the nine civil service unions' demand for a 15 percent hike on all salaries, which range from $8,505 for janitors to $62,370 for top civil servants. After nearly four months of selective walkouts and job slowdowns that crippled tax collections and disrupted air travel and ambulance services, the civil service department improved its offer Friday to 7.5 percent.

The dispute so far bas cost the unions $17 million in strike pay, while chancellor of the exchequer (treasury minister) Sir Geoffrey Howe said the government has paid nearly $208 million in interest on money borrowed to cover uncollected taxes.

non Saturday hitting a bridge southeast of the Mediterranean port of Sidon, the Palestine news agency WAFA reported. Israeli jets also made several reconnaissance flights over Beirut and the south, following Friday's heavy raids which, according to official fig-ures, killed 300 persons and wounded 800 others. WAFA said Hamra bridge, between Sidon and the inland market town of Nabatiyeh, was bombed. It was the tenth bridge the Israelis have attacked in the past three day's raids designed to cut Palestinian communications.

In Sidnn meanwhile, security sources reported one person killed and three wounded in an artillery bombardment by Israeli gunners Saturday morning. They said an Israeli warship also shelled Zahrani to the south.

The Democratie Front for the Liberation of Palestine (DFLP), beaded by Nayef Hawatmeh, announced Saturday that 21 of its members had died when their office was hit Friday by Israeli bombs. The DFLP said in a communique that among the dead were three children and two women. Most of the dead handled administrative work. The communique said the "crime carried out jointly by (Israeli Premier Menahem) Begin and (U.S. President Ronald) Reagan will not go unpunished.

Nine bridges linking southern Lebanon to. the rest of the country have been destroyed; this week, cutting off a 60-kms wide strip of territory. Israeli statements Saturday confirmed Lebanese and Palestinian fears that the worst was still to come. Both Lebanese and Palestinian leaders Saturday believed that Israel was prepared to invade Lebanon.

Israell heavy artillery pounded south Lebanon Saturday, with attacks on Sidon Itself, Habush, Zahrani and Nabatiyeh. Palestinian positions returned the fire against Nahariya, Metulla, Dan and Kyriat Shimona.

With the country split in two following the destruction of the hridges over the Zahrani and Litani Rivers, the journey from Sidon to Beirut, only 50 kms takes six hours with all traffic, including ambulances, having to take a five-bour detour through the mountains. lay said that aner reports Satur Lehanese authorities had asked Syria for prefabricated metal bridges but that these would take several days to transport and set up.

Lehanon told the United Nations that Israel's air raid on Beirut Friday killed 300 persons and injured 800.

Fakhri Saghiyyah, Lebanon's delegate appealed to the 15-nation council Friday night, to "stop the carnage" and it responded with an appeal for an end to all armed attacks in Lebanon. Council members, meeting at Lebanon's request, expressed their deep concern at the extent of the loss of life and the scale of the destruction caused by the deplorable events that have been taking place for several days in Lebanon." They also launched " an urgent appeal for an immediate end to all armed attacks and other acts of vinlence and for the greatest restraint so that peace and quiet may be established in Lebanon and a just and lasting peace in the Middle East as a whole."

In Paris, France responded to the Israeli raids in Lebanon by warning against a new military flare-up in the Middle East. A statement from Elysee secretary-general Pierre Beregovoy commented: "It is not through force that one will reach a just settlement guaranteeing Israel's security in sure and recognized borders, Lebanon's right to live in peace and the Palestinian people's right to a

Meanwhile, Israel Saturday threatened even tougher "blows" against Palestinians in Lehanon. The warning was given on the radio by Deputy Defense Minister Zippori.

RESCUE WORK: Firefighters are seen removing an injured man from under a collapsed walkway in the lobby of the Hyatt Regency Hotel, Kansas City, Friday night. Over 108 die as U.S. hotel walkways collapse

KANSAS CITY, July 18 (Agencies) — Two suspension walkways which collapsed on dancers on the main floor of the Hyatt Regency Hotel Friday night killed at least 108 persons and injured about 150, police reported Saturday.

The death toll climbed dramatically when searchers pulled away a new section of the ruhhle of the year-old luxury hotel, according to sergeant Jim Treece of the Kansas city police department. He said the figure included only those who died at the hotel and did not take in those who may have died at local bospitals.

As the first of the bodies were pulled from a tangle of twisted girders and broken glass, officials designated one room of the posh midtown hotel as a temporary morgue. Officials said rescue efforts were hampered by natural gas leaks, and were working to shut off the leaks to eliminate the chance of explosion in the 40-story building.

Harold Knabe, a spokesman for the Kansas City Fire Department, said part of the lobby in the west side of the building also had collapsed. He said equipment, including cranes, was brought in to help people who were trapped by the collapsing walkways. The walkways are stacked one over another at different levels inside the lobby of the hotel. Police said that one of the walkways fell and knocked down the others, which crossed underneath it.

The ballroom beneath the walkways was crowded with dancers at a "tea Dance," which has become a Friday night fixture at the latest luxury hotel to open in Kansas City. A hotel staff member estimated at least 1,500 persons were in the area when the collapse

More than 40 emergency vehicles from across the metropolitan area hurried to the scene, and several of the injured were evacuated by helicopter.

Rescue workers said seven persons trapped under a mountain of concrete and steel medical attention. Some 600 rescue workers - police, firefighters and paramedics searched for more victims. Police and hospital officials said the toll could be higher. Cranes removed a part of the facade of the hotel, huilt last year at a cost of $50 million.

"This is the worst disaster in my 25 years plus as a police officer. The closest thing I can recall to this, God Forbid, was Korea," Kansas city police chief Norman Caron said. More than 100 injured persons were taken to hospital.

Witnesses said there were more than 500 persons in the lobby when the criss-crossing walkways fell without any warning other than a lond cracking sound. The walkways, about 150 feet long and 20 feet wide, spanned the lobby north to south on the second and third floors. The third-floor walkway collapsed first, breaking off at hoth ends and falling onto the second-floor "skybridge," JEDDAH, July 18 - The Dar al Mal al Islami (House of Islamic Funds) completed its first capital slock issue of $310 million last week, according to the organization's president, Prince Mubammad Al-Faisal.

In an exclusive interview with Arab News, Prince Muhammad said the Islamic organization will hold its first public subscription issue of $250 million from the end of Ramadan until the end of the year. The financial organization aims for a total capitalization of $1 hillion by 1986.

The first stock issue brought 120 stockholders into the company. They were required to pay no less than $1 million and no more than $5 million for stock. Although the price of one share of stock has been $100, the next public issue will hold a $5 premium, as a result of the company making a five percent profit in the past four months. The $60 million value of the group's Geneva-based investment company was absorbed for the first issue.

Later the group will make a public offering in Muslim states to raise the remaining funds. Capitalization is fixed at $1 billion since the company will compete with the world's well-established and wellcapitalized financial insolutions.

EEC plan denounced

Brezhnev, Karmal discuss Afghanistan

MOSCOW, July 18 (Agencies) — Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev beld unscheduled talks in the Crimea Friday with President Babrak Karmal of Afghanistan and an official report indicated they were unsympathetic toward European Common Market efforts to resolve the Afghan problem.

The Soviet news agency Tass said they noted that because of outside interference in Afghanistan, the quest for a settlement had "still not been put onto practical lines." Tass said they blamed the interference on imperialist countries and hegemonist forces, a reference to alleged Western and Chinese support for Afghan fighters opposed to Karmal's government.

The two leaders were quoted as saying a political solution was possible, however, and that known Soviet and Afghan proposals could serve as a good foundation. The EEC proposals, put to Moscow last week by British Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, were not mentioned. But the message that a practical basis was still needed for a solution recalled earlier Soviet criticism of the plan as unrealis-

Soviet opposition to the EEC scheme has hardened since Lord Carrington's visit. Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko described it at the time as unrealistic but has since used the word "unacceptable." The EEC plan calls for a two-stage conference involving the five permanent members of the United Nations Security Council and Afghanistan's neighbors in the first stage. They would be joined in the second by Afghan representatives.

The Afghan proposals foresee talks bet-ween Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iran, and an end to all foreign interference - a phrase which Moscow uses to mean all opposition to the Kabul government.

Meanwhile, heavy fighting between Soviet and Afghan troops and anti-government rebels has heen raging at Gulbahar, 100 kilometers north of Kabul at the mouth of the strategic Panjsher Valley, according to a report from the Afghan capital. Also, rebels wearing Afghan army uniforms recently penetrated the beavily-guarded Soviet base at Kelagai, outside Poli Chomri in northern Baghlan province and set on fire several oil storage tanks, according to the report reaching New Delhi from a source who has been accurate in the past. The fires raged for more than four days. Neither report could be independently confirmed.

A last-minute hitch appears to bave been Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's insistence that a new clause be added to the agreement reached in Cairo latst month. This would state that the force could not be withdrawn from Sinai without approval of both Israel and Egypt. Israel radio this week reported that the agreement approved by the Israeli cabinet contained such a clause. Informed sources said Begin's demand to add the clause was apparently prompted by memories of the fate of the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF) established after the 1956 Suez crisis. The UNEF peacekeeping contingent left Egyptian territory when Egyptian President Gamal Ahdul Nasser unilaterally demanded its withdrawal shortly before the outbreak of the 1967 Middle East war.

Final negotiations about the accord were worked out at the U.S. Embassy bere with delegations being headed by Taher Shah of Egypt. David Dimch of Israel and Michael Sterner. BEIRUT, July 18 (AP) - "Come see the people killed," a young boy yelled at reporters on the edge of the Sabra Palestinian refugee camp in Beirut after Israeli warplanes struck repeatedly Friday.

On Ahu Saleh Street, near a duster of Palestinian commando offices that dot the fringes of the camp, buildozers chewed into the still-burning rubble and rescue workers continued to pull bodies out of the debris, five hours after the raid.

"There's more, there's more," the rescue workers shouted as they scrambled back on top of the beap of broken concrete, smashed furniture and the litter of personal possessions, plastic buckets and clothes.

Palestine Liberation Organization commandos swarmed through the streets, firing their AK-47 automatic rifles in the air to keep crowds from gathering. Daoud Talhami, spokesman for the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, stood on a cornet near a demolished seven-story apartment building and told a reporter the targets of the attack were apparently the DFLP offices and those of Fateb and the Arab Liberation Front, both only a few hundred meters away.

'Israel attacks Lebanon U.S.tells Pakistan F-16 supply will take 'years'

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) - U.S. Defense Department officials have told a Pakistani military delegation that their country will have to wait for a number of years before receiving new F-16 fighter planes, sources said Friday.

The proposed sale of F-16 fighters reportedly was a centerpiece in three days of dicussions between senior defense and State Department officials and a military delegation from Pakistan which came here following an announced U.S. agreement to provide $3 billion in military and economic aid to the south Asian country. The main rationale behind the new U.S. aid program, defense officials said, is to belp build Pakistani defenses to counter possible Soviet incursions from Russian-occupied Afghanistan and to contribute to stability in the region

Defense officials, who asked to remain anonymous, said the U.S. side offered no specific number of F-16s but that it was made clear the Pakistanis would not receive the previous commitments to other countries and the need to fill up U.S. Air Force orders. Among other things, it was understood that the Pakistanis are interested in huying improved M-48 tanks. These are older designs than the M-61 which is the current main U.S. battle tank.

Other items under discussion in the past three days included helicopters, anti-aircraft weapons, transport planes, communications equipment, artillery and ammunition, sources said. According to sources familiar with the discussions, the Pakistanis led by Secretary General of Defense M. Rahim Khan came to Washington with what was described as a "list of requirements."

The Pakistani delegation met with Deputy Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci, Undersecretary of State James Buckley and U.S. army, air force and navy officers. There was no indication when further talks will be held,

Against death sentences

Palestinians win case for retrial

ANKARA, July 18 (R) — The Turkish Civilian Appeals Court has allowed an appeal against death sentences on four Palestinian commandos, who stormed the Egyptian embassy in Ankara two years ago, and ordered a retrial.

The court ruled against the sentences passed last December by a civilian court, citing two irregularities in the initial trial before a military tribunal. The four were sentenced to death by a martial law court in 1979 but a military appeals court later canceled the sentences saying the case did not come under the jurisdiction of a military.

They were tried a second time by a civilian court which also sentenced them to death. Their third trial is not expected to start until later in the year because of a judicial recess which began Friday, according to court turces. The Palestinians stormed the Egyptian embassy July 13, 1979 killing a Turkish policeman and a watchman on embassy guard duty. An Egyptian hostage jumped to his death from an upper story window in an attempt to escape.

They held about 12 embassy staff hostage for two days before surrendering following medianon by officials of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO). The commandos had demanded that Turkey sever its relations with Egypt and that two Palestinian Commandos jailed in Egypt be released. At their trials, the four said they belonged to "The Eagles of Palestinian Revolution," a militant group within the Syrian-backed Saiga wing of the PLO. They are Syrian citizens Mervan Sebanu, 25, Muhammad Dip Ebuzerad, 20, Suleiman Abdullah, 24, and Lebanese Mustafa Beysheyshi, 21.

At hoth trials, they were convicted of killing the guards and "attempting to disrupt Turkey's relations with another country".

One of the legal technicalities cited by the appeals court in Friday's decision was that the military court which initially sentenced the four should bave later decided on its own incompetence to handle the case. As it is, the military court's incompetence was ruled by the military court of appeals and not the court itself. The civilian appeals court also said that in both trials the defendants' birth records were not with the courts when they were sen-

Guest worker proposal

U.S. immigration package approved

WASHINGTON. July 18 (Agencies1 -President Ronald Reagan bas approved the major provisions on a package of U.S. immigration reform proposals, including a guest worker program and civil sanctions against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens, administration officials have said.

The proposals, to he announced formally next week, are essentially those recommended last month by a task force, the sources said. Disputes in the cabinet over several of the recommendations delayed presentation of the options to Reagan until Thursday.

According to the sources, Reagan considered the options overnight and disclosed his preferences to aides Friday. Some work remains to be done on details before the proposals are sent to Congress or made public, said the sources, who declined to be named.

Among the major recommendations Reagan has approved, the sources said, were: - A temporary guest worker program to let employers bring, in 50,000 alien workers annually for two years. In selecting this option, Reagan rejected the views of some advisers who sought a much bigger program that would have imported as many as one million workers annually,

- Civil penalties of $500 to 1,000 for employers of more than four persons who know-

Junta OKs Garcia Meza

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 18 (AP) -Bolivia's three-man ruling military junta, the country's highest political authority, Friday formally approved Gen. Luis Garcia Meza's decision to remain as president, Garcia Meza decided last week not to resign his office, as he had announced in May.

He selzed power as head of the Army in a coup a year ago Friday, toppling the civilian government of Lydia Gueiler. Junta members include the commanders of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

While Garcia Meza no longer is a member, he "presides" over the governing body, which bas held executive and legislative powers since the 1980 coup. Garcia Meza was Army representative in the junta until May 26, when he resigned as commander and announced his intention to leave the presidency in August.

ingly hire illegal aliens. Employers could avoid liability by asking job applicants to produce various kinds of identification which showed them to be legal workers.

The sources said Reagan rejected a recommendation calling for an "enhanced social security card" to identify legal workers. This was an apparent victory for advisers who had argued that such a card would be lantamount to a "national identity card."

- A request to Congress for authority to begin a program of "selective interdiction" of vessels hound for the United States with illegal aliens aboard.

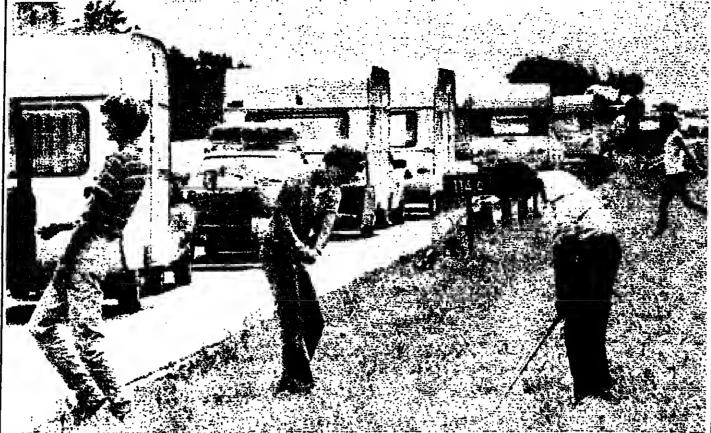

- Other enforcement measures in the proposals would be designed to prevent repetition of the 1980 "boatlift" from Cuha. They include asking for legislation to prohibit bringing illegal aliens to the United States, and to give the president power to ban American boats from going to certain countries during designated "immigration emergencies" and to confiscate boats used in violation of immigration laws.

- Provisions to let hundreds of thousands of illegal aliens ohtain permanent resident status. According to the sources, Reagan rejected several more liheral amnesty proposals for aliens and instead chose an option to let persons who have been in the United States for 10 years apply for permanent resident status.

Justice Department spokesman Tom Decair said the new policy would include granting amnesty to illegal Mexican immigrants who had been continuous residents in the United States for five years before Jan. 1, 1980. The department said these illegal immigrants, estimated at between 3.5 and 6 million, would then he protected from deportation and would be able to apply for citizen-

The question of long-term Mexican residents in the United States was discussed at a meeting between President Reagan and Mexican President Lopez Portillo when the Mexican leader visited Washington last month. The spokesman said the administration would seek agreements with neighboring countries permitting U.S. officials to seize ships outside territorial waters and return would-he immigrant aliens to their homelands. No such bilateral agreements are now

When countries declined to enter into sucb agreements, U.S. authorities would follow present procedures for handling illegal immigrants, such as arrest and a deportation hearing, the officials said,

Soviet minister sacked for faking plant completion

MOSCOW, July 18 (AP) - A Soviet deputy power minister has been fired for falsely reporting that a Siberian hydroelectric power plant was in operation, an ideological journal has reported.

Deputy Power and Electrification Minister Nikolai tvantsov, was dismissed after claiming last February that the first section of the Kolyma power station in northeast Siberia was generating electricity, Partinaya Zhizn (parry life) said Fri-

The plant functioned for just six days at one-tenth of its scheduled capacity, then bad to be sbut down again for four months so that work could be completed, the journal said.

Ivantsov was accused of reducing the scope of the project without authorization so that the station could be started up "at any price." Ivantsov, one of 13 deputy ministers, was given a formal party reprimand for permitting violations of state discipline. Similar rebukes were given to local party chief in Kolyma and to the first deputy minister, Pavel Falaleyev, for allowing the plant to be handed over to the state unfinished, the report said.

Newspaper's suspension Argentine action irks U.S.

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) - The U.S. State Department has said that while it regards the decision of the Argentine government to place a former member of the ruling military junta under bouse arrest as an internal matter it is concerned about the suspension of his newspaper.

In a clarification of a previous comment, the department said Friday that it understands that Adm. Emilo Massera, as a retired military officer, was subjected to 10 days restriction by the Argentine military.

"We regard that as an internal matter," the department said. But it said the suspension of Massera's newspaper, Cambo, for 15 days and the confiscation of its last edition was a different matter.

It urges Reagan to seek "a temporary worldwide moratorium" on sale of potential weapons developing equipment while nuclear-supplier countries work out an: agreement on restrictions to prevent use of the equipment for weapons development.

The Senate action came several hours after the House of Representatives, by a 365-0 margin, approved a similar resolution, urging the administration to belp develop sanctions against countries which secretly divert nuclear materials and technology for the purpose of making atomic weapons.

The Senate resolution also asks Reagan to seek better international inspection of nuclear programs, a policy Reagan had already declared Thursday. Sen. John Glenn, chief sponsor of the resolution, told the Senate be hopes Reagan will consult with other nu dear-supplier nations in Ottawa next week to begin working out an agreement to restrict the "dangerous nuclear trade."

Glenn said all nuclear-supplying nations except Switzerland will be represented at the seven-nation economic summit conference in Ottawa, "The president's policy is very vague," Glenn told reporters later, "We bope we can strengthen their hackbone over there

Reagan announced Thursday that his policy also will be to "inhibit the transfer of sensitive nuclear material, equipment and technology, particularly where the danger of proliferation demands." OTTAWA SUMMIT

Barrier and the Committee of the Commit

The summit of the seven richest industrialized nations in Ottawa will understandably devote most of its time to the economic problems of the member states. These will include what they fear a global recession, high rates of inflation, high American interest rates and widespread unemployment.

The five European nations have already indicated the indignation with American interest rates which are draining their economies of cash deposits and diverting foreign funds from their banks to those in the U.S. President Reagan will most probably refuse to budge because that is his way of controlling inflation. Europe will have to raise its own interest rates to curtail the exodus of money to the U.S. banks. Together with the U.S. the European states and Canada will unite to stem the tide of Japanese exports to their countries which are blamed for much of their unemployment...

These are legitimate and pressing issues but they are also problems afflicting the super rich, those who have nearly everything but still want more. They would thus do a greater service to mankind, including themselves, if they also raise the urgent problems of global poverty, recurrent famines and inferior services.

The seven nations have vast resources and superior technology which should be better utilized to improve the conditions of life prevailing in most of the world. As they get richer, the rest get poorer and if the trend continues they too might lose their enviable standard of living and the relative luxury in which their people live.

The U.S. and the European Economic Community between them share the world's greatest food surplus thanks to their free economies and the inceotives that they provide the spirit of individual enterprise. The Soviet Union and its allies as well as Communist China are net importers despite their size and potential. So they are in no position to distribute any food to the Third World. Those in Ottawa can and have been doing something in this direction but that something is plainly inadequate and should be reviewed at the summit.

This is not to absolve some of the regimes on the receiving end from mismanaging foreign aid, corruption and disorganization at home. But their starving people deserve a better

Crisis looms in divided Cyprus

By Robert Little

Voters in the Turkish federated state of Cyprus two weeks ago produced the worst possible result. The government that will now eventually be formed will almost certainly not reflect the majority view of the people, but more likely the talents of party leaders to cobble together sufficient of a parliamentary majority to obtain a vote of confidence when the new House of Representatives meets at the end

President Rauf Denktash succeeded by a considerably reduced majority in returning to office for a second and final five-year term. On the other hand, his National Unity Party (UBP) suffered a serious setback by winning only 18 of the 40 seats in the assembly, thereby, as predicted, losing its overall

The surprise result of the elections was the 14 ats won by Alpay Durduran and candidates of Commuoal Liberation Party (CLP). In the old assembly his party had only three sitting members. In political complexion Durduran's party can best be described as being a shade to the Left of most Western European democratic Socialist parties. Durduran's problem will come in trying to find common ground to form a coalition with members of the three smaller parties. A predictable ally will be Ozker Ozgur and the other three members of his Republican Turkish Party (CTP). But as an avowed Marxist-Leninist party, with close links through Moscow with the Greek Cypriot Akel Communist Party io the South, whether it would be wise for Durduran's political future to form such a grouping is another matter

Nearly ooe quarter of the Turkish federated state's anoual budget and the total cost of maintaining the 20,000 Turkish security forces in North Cyprus is paid by the Turkish government in Ankara. The strong anti-Communist views of Head of State Geo. Kenan Evren and his colleagues on Turkey's National Security Council are well known. It is most unlikely that they would sit back and watch the growth of Communist influence in their own backyard without taking some form of actioo. But even with the backing of the four CTP members Durduran would still be three seats sbort of the magic figure of 21 required for an overall majority. What is as near a certainty as possible is that there will be no chance of the other two remaining parties in the bouse, the Democratic People's Party (DPP) with three seats and the Cyprus Turkish Party (TKP) with ooe seat, joining in any coalition as parmers with the Marxist-Leninists.

Which briogs us back to the prospect of ao understanding being reached to form a government between the 18 members of Denktash's UBP and the 14 members of Durduran's party?

At a first glance the possibilities seem rather remote. Comparing each of the parties' election programs it is strikingly evident that their policies are poles apart. When on the eve of polling day I first put the question to Durduran, when it appeared the possibility could arise, he declared that "under no circumstances' would his party be willing to join with UPB members in forming a coalition government. When I repeated the same question to him the next day, as the pattern of the results began to emerge, his more cautious reply was: "Let VIr. Cagatay (UBP leader in the house) contact us first and then we will see." When I put the same question to Denktash his reply was more philosophical. "We will find a solution in the end I'm sure. We have learned to live with slender majorities and we will work something out between us," he said. The main reason for the shift of voters away from the UBP at the polls appears to have stemmed from crincism that too great an emphasis has been placed by Denktash's administration on encouraging economic expansion by offering preferential terms to private investors, particularly to attract foreign investment from abroad. Promises to workers in the past of jam tomorrow io return for the belttightening conditions of receot years have led to the suspicion that tomorrow may never come. These fears and suspicions during the elections were exploited by the opposition parties, which promised a wider spread in distribution of the state's available resources. Larger industries would be nationalized and greater stress would be placed on encouraging the development of agricultural and industrial cooperatives in place of individual private enterprise.

It is expected that as the reelected President Denktash will now invite the outgoing prime minister and UBP leader in the house, Mustafa Cagatay. to try to form a new government. Because of the celebrations this week to mark the seventh anniversary of the founding of the Turkish federated state, it will be some weeks before the outcome of his negotiations with the other parties is known.

What is likely to be greatest casualty of the undecisive results of the elections will be the U.N.sponsored intercommunal talks with the Greek ypriot administration in the South to establish a federal constitution for a reunified Cyprus. Six weeks ago the elections in the South produced a 12-12 tie betweeo Glafcos Clerides' United Democratic Party and the Akel Communist front. It is most improbable that Denktash or the two maio parties in the new assembly in the northern sector would agree on a joint administration which included a Communist presence.

Zimbabwe bans contraceptive drug

By Stephen Taylor

SALISBURY -Zimbabwe has become the first country in Africa to ban a controversial but widely used contraceptive drug, causing deep concern to officials dealing with one of the world's fastest growing populations. The debate here over Depo Provera poses a particularly African dilemma. The drug, administered once every three months in an injection, has been prescribed in Zimbabwe for 12 years and bas been a key part of the country's birth control program, being used by more iban 100,000 women, often without their husband's knowledge.

The Zimbabwe cabinet decision, disclosed two weeks ago, to phase out the drug has not been explained but is believed to have been taken because of some evidence that it may cause blood clotting and thrombosis. The United States and some other Western countries - but not all - bave banned it.

Medical authorities bere maintain that authoritative studies show that Depo Provera is no more dangerous than any other bormonal contraceptive and believe it is at least part of the answer to Africa's population problems. With a threemonth safe period, they say, it is ideal for women living in remote rural areas as well as being culturally acceptable.

. Peter Dodds, bead of the local Family Planning Association, bas resigned in protest at the ban which he believes will bave a disastrous effect on the organization's attempts to reduce Zimbabwe's birth rate, which is the third bighest in Africa and fourth in the world. Not long ago, Zimbabwe ranked second in Africa after Kenya in its population growth but the rate bas been significantly reduced, largely Dodds believes, because of Depo Provera.

The Zimbabwe cabinet is understood to bave wanted an immediate ban but was advised by the minister of bealth, Dr. Herbert Ushewokunze; that this would be impossible. The cabinet opted instead to phase out use, although over what period is not

The Family Planning Association is the national contraceptive supplier and is bastily trying to devise a program to transfer the 100,000 women to other contraceptives. "I do not know bow we will cope. This has really put the clock back," Dodds said before be resigned.

Meanwhile, impressed by Zimbabwe's successful reduction of its birth rate, a Keoyan family planning team is due bere to seek advice on dealing with what is now the fastest population growth to the world.

Dutch neutralism worries NATO

THE HAGUE -American news columnists are calling it Dutch disease or Hollanditis, a contagion that Western defense officials fear may be infecting other countries. The Netherlands' American allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) bave expressed increasing concern at the effects of Hollanditis - seen as neutralism, pacifism and unilateralism.

They are worried it could sap the will to bring in 572 new U.S. nuclear missiles approved by NATO in 1979 to counter growing numbers of new Soviet SS-20 missiles aimed at Western Europe. A senior U.S. official recently said after a trip to Europe: "There is a rise of pacifism and reutralism...damn it, if the Alliance now can't proceed with that decision, we will bave shown the Soviet they have a veto power over our deployment plans and we will have showed each other that when it comes to a really tough decision, we can't make it."

The Dutch government is due to decide in December if it will accept 48 new U.S. missiles as part of the NATO plan, but is widely expected to postpone the decision.

U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig, recalling the 1979 agreement, hinted on Tuesday that a delay was likely: "We would like very much to have the Netherlands and Belgium join in that consensus and I'm optimistic that over time they will." The Dutch government, still not formed after the

May 26 elections, is caught between a strong antiouclearist lobby at home and commitments to its NATO allies abroad. A recent all-party report called "New Nuclear Arms in the Netherlands — yes or no." concluded . that the government's choice was to say yes to the missiles io December and not be right, to say no and be wrong, or say maybe and satisfy nobody.

Refusal would be best for domestic poblic opinion but would damage NATO and encourage antinuclearists. Accepting the weapons could inflame Dutch opposition .. and so hurt NATO in the long run. Postpooement of the decisioo in December would do little to defuse the issue at bome and would probably be seen by NATO allies as the prelude to a refusal, the report said.

Only one of the four main Dutch political parties, the Liberals, solidly supports the new missiles. The biggest party, the Christian Democrats of 'caretaker Prime Minister Dries Van Agt, and deeply divided on the issue.

Labor leader Joop Den Uyl narrowly managed to stop labor's pre-election Congress from adopting a stance of unilateral ouclear disarmament advocated by a militant church movement.

While Americans are concerned by what they see as the apparent European blindness to the Soviet threat they perceive. Dutch politicians are worried that Americans will misunderstand European views in their determination to take a hard line against the Soviet Union. "Insistence on accepting new nuclear systems is giving the Dntch a neutralist label we do. not deserve...the U.S. lifted its grain embarge on the Soviet Umon in response to domestic pressure, so it should have some insight into the situation of the Dutch government," a defense specialist told Mucb of the growing anti-nuclearism in the Netherlands and West Germany has been coordinated by religious groups in tune with the conscience of Protestant Northern Europe. Defense analysts and political commentators generally agree that the dominant inflence on the Netherlands is Calvinism, a highly moralistic brand of Protestantism which puts great emphasis oo individual responsibility to do good.

ist...nndear weapons and atomic energy fulfill the role the devil used to play when people were more religious," according to Jerome Heldring, a leading columnist and director of the Dutch Institute of International Affairs, an independent study body.

Even Catholics and atheists here are Calvin-

"The current wave of pacifism is an old Dutch tradition. It stopped after the war, when communism was seen as the greatest evil, but the new generation took it op again," he said. (R)

Arabian Press

Newspapers Saturday led with Israel's large-scale attack on Lebanon, in which the enemy warplanes and boats were busy in their offensive right from Nakourah in the south to the capital city of Beirut. Nine bridges were reported to have been destroyed, nearly 150 persons were killed and another 600 injured in Beirut. The papers said that the Israeli raids meetly concentrated on civilian objects in Lebanon.

In a front-page story, oewspapers reported that, following the Israeli attack on Lebanon, the United States has announced it is postponing its decision on the supply of F-16 warplanes to Israel. Okaz reported oo its froot page that Saudi Arabia is trying to conduct a meeting between King Hassan II of the Morocco and President Chadli Benjedid of Algeria for a rapprochement between the two countries. It also highlighted a statement by the French Foreign Minister in which be reportedly said that France will remain committed to its previous pledges and will continue to support efforts to realize peace in the Middle East.

A l Medina gave page one highlight to a report which said that Pakistan bas reiterated its refusal to accept any bases on its territory. In a front-page story, Al -Bilad quoted the Iraqi ambassador to the Kingdom as saying that Saudi Arabia's intention to rebuild the Iraql nuclear reactor at its own expeose demonstrates its concern for Arab causes and sol-that this decisioo symbolizes the spirit of brotherhood io the Kingdom's stances. The decision also provides an emineot proof that this country believes in deeds, not words, said the paper, adding that the enemy will now realize that the Kingdom's decisioo to rebuild the reactor bas completely dashed all its objectives and plans. The Saudi Arabian initiative has shown the real importance of a joint actioo among the Arabs, and has further proved that the Arab nation is fully determined to realize its objec-

On the same subject, Al Nadwa ooted that the Israeli attack on the reactor bad shocked the entire Arab and Islamic world and soon a reaction was seen in the Kingdom's decision to rebuild it at its own cost, so that work should contioue to strengthen the nation and to enable it to repel any Zionist plot against it. The paper added that, as in 1966 King Faisal bad successfully brought about a change in President De Gaulle's policy toward the Arab issue, King Khaled was able to convince President Mitterrand of France of the need to continue to abide by the just stances on the crucial issues of the Arabs. The paper lauded France's response to rebuild the reactor and to continue to impose embargo on the supply of French arms to the Israeli

On the other band, Al Javirah dealt with Israel's dastardly attack on Lebanoo and said that it wants to see Lebanon capitulate, giving a lead to other Arab states to submit to the Israeli wishes as envisaged in the Camp David plan. In order to achieve its objectives, Israel has tried hard to blow up the peace efforts of the Arab Follow-Up Committee on Lebanon, being convinced that it will be isolated from the Lebanese crisis if the committee fully suceeeded in its conciliation efforts. The paper added that Israel bas escalated its offensive in South Lebanoo perhaps to launch a surprise attack on Syria to create a military and psychological pressure on the Arabs in general and on Lebanoo in particu-

On the same subject, Al Bilad observed that Israel's persistent attacks oo Lebaoon urge; the world to think of the dimensions of the enemy's criminal activities and to strive to put an end to its intransigence. It added that peace was about to be restored in Lebanon, but the world Zionism does not want to see Lebanoo flourish under peaceful conditions and build bridges of peace and understanding between it and the outside world.

Okaz also resented the Israeli attack and the West's bias toward the Israeli enemy. The paper said that the funeral of three Israelis, who were killed in the Palestinian rocket attacks, was given a much wider coverage in the Western press than the oews of the killings of bundreds of Arabs in South Lebanon in the Israeli attack. The paper did not see any use in calling a meeting of the Security Council, instead it urged the Arabs to strengthen themselves for a tough confrontation with the enemy whose only aim, it said, is to blow up all Arab efforts to realize a oational reconciliation in Lebanon.

Weaponless battleship dispatched Small crew to fight Soviet whalers

By Eleanor Randolph

ALEXANDRIA, Va., (LAT) - Paul Watson, the commander of a small crew of intense young eco-guerrillas, was explaining why be was ready to cause an international incident, if oecessary, to spare the lives of his ocean-bound friends, as he calls them, the great gray whales.

"We've going after the Soviets this seasoo," Watson said as he sat in the austere captain's quarters of his rusty trawler, the Sea Shepherd II. "We're going to put this vessel, and our bodies really, in between that big Soviet whaler up off the coast of Alaska, and we're going to do whatever's necessary short of harming people or whales - to stop this slaughter of the grays."

Watson, whose weaponless battleship has since started making its way to the West coast for last-minute fund-raising events before any such eocounter, is accustomed to fighting for whales in an unorthodox way. Watson and his friends first came to public attention as whale vigilantes in 1979 when he rammed Sea Shepherd I into a Portuguese whaling ship, the Sierra, crippling ber uotil other opponents of whaling could attach a magnetic mine to her hull for the final destruction.

"If anything happens up there with the Soviets, they will be the ones causing the international incident, not me," said Watson, a 30-year-old Canadian. "The Soviets are the ones conducting the massacre, to me."

Political Undercurrents Exist undercurrents the Reagan administration has discovered lurking in the whaling issue, one that had been expected to provide it with easy sailing. As any good politician knows, saving the whales is almost the political equivalent of supporting the boy scouts. Millions of Americans, except for some of the whaling Eskimos in Alaska, seem to have a special yearning to protect whales. As many in the save-the-whale movement see it, the geotle. intelligeot oceangoing mammals have a more complex social structure than many humans.

Bot if befriending the whales is good politics in many parts of this country, it provokes problems elsewhere, not only between Watsoo and the Soviets but with the United States' much-beleagured allies, the Japaoese.

"Japan has always been a firm friend and ally of the United States," said Alan Macnow, consultant to the Japan Whaling Association in testimony June 25 before the Senate Commerce Committee. "But within the past few months, a number of incidents have shaken Japan's trust in our country. First, a U.S. nuclear submarine sank a Japanese freighter and sped away without offering assistance to drowning seamen.

Then, there were revelations that the United States secretly stored nuclear weapons on Japanese territory. This was folese fishing gear, Add to these incidents Japanese resentment over U.S. pressure for a reduction in automobile exports and ... you have a very volatile situation," Macnow said. With only a few days uotil the Reagan administration makes its first appearance at a meeting of the International Whaling Commissioo (IWC) scheduled for July 20 in Brighton, England, the administration appears to be caught in an internal struggle over whether to support to the Whales or the

Political Influence Sought

This struggle reportedly begao May 18 when Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt surprised environmentalists by proposing that his old friend and fellow Wyoming native, Tom Garrett, be named Whaling Commissioner at this year's whaling conference. Garrett, an ardent frieod of the whales with strong opinions about what be regards as the excesses of the whaling industry, said Watt believed that whales were "gentle, beautiful creatures that should never he abused.

However, Watt's letter provoked widespread irritation at the Department of Commerce, where Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldrige would normally select the commissioner. Garrett's appointment became a battle not only over marine mammals but over bureaucratic turf.

"It was the way Watt did it," said one participant in the internal dispute. "If he had just gone to Baidrige and said he wanted Garrett to he whaling commissioner, it probably would have been fine. Instead, he slaps out a press release and letter that says, in effect, We must support whales because it is right for America.

As a result, Baldrige delayed naming Garrett as commissioner and then appointed him only to an "acting" position. He will be replaced next year by the director of the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration, the persoo who has tradinonally held the commissioner's job. Delays Confuse Experts

The delays, however, have seot confusing signals to international whaling experts, according to some close to the commission. The question will be wbether the United States is going to approach the IWC politi-cally or scientifically," said one veteran of wbaling disputes "it's beginning to look more political with these folds." The Reagan administration has backed the standard U.S. position in favor of a ban on all commercial whaling, although such a measure will be difficult to pass at the wbaling conference, since the nine natioos that support whaling are expected to have enough votes to block it.

Alternate Plan Offered As an alternative to the total ban, whale supporters are pushing for a ban on commercial whaling in the northern Atlantic. Some members say such a proposal may have a chance if the United States appears to be firmly behind it.

Whether the United States will broadcast that impressioo is unclear. Some whaling officials believe that since the United States recently persuaded the International Whaling Commissioo to allow Alaskan Eskimos to buot bowhead whales as part of their cultural heritage, it will be difficult to push for a moratorium on the other side of the conti-

"Until this cootradiction is resolved by stopping the bowhead huot, the United States cannot hope to lead the IWC to a moratorium." Dr. John E. Kelly, research professor of science and public policy at the University of New Hampshire, argued recently at a senate hearing on wbaling policy.

"Quite the contrary, the United States can expect to be viewed with suspicion and disrespect which befits one who condemns another for crimes which himself commits."

Moreover, the whaling nations, in particular the Japanese, are pushing the Reagan administration to accept the view that whale meat is a part of Japan's culture and heritage, just as it is for Eskimos.

"The Japanese have a bard time realizing bow many Americans feel about this Issue," said Bert Ingalls Hickman Jr., a Washington lobbyist for the Japanese Whaling Industry. panese, for whom whale meat is part of their tradition, see whales as a recewable resource, just like Americans feel about timber." Hickman, who ooted that there were

'Biggest ever' security plan protects wedding dignitaries

By Hugh Carnegy

LONDON, (R) - London's police are staging their biggest-ever security operation for the marriage of the heir to the British throne, Prince Charles, and Lady Diana Spencer at St. Paul's Cathedral on July 29.

The wedding's pageantry, pomp and color, may be a welcome tonic to most Britons weary of riots and recession, but it poses a severe headache for the police.

Recent assassination attempts on President Ronald Reagan and Pope John Paul and a gun scare for Prioce Charles' mother Queeo Elizabeth are grim waroings to those in charge of security on the big day.

Not just the wedding couple, but the rest of the royal family and hundreds of world politicians and dignitaries have to be protected as they make their way along a two mile (3.5 km) route lined by thousands of onlookers from Buckingham Palace to the cathedral.

The metropolitan police and London's other force, the city police, are jointly organizing what one senior officer called "the higgest security operation we have ever mounted."

It will involve thousands of uniformed and plain-clothes officers on the ground, armed men oo rooftops, sophisticated closed-circuit television systems and exaustive screening of buildings and people in them along the procession route.

With tension high in Northern Ireland over death fasts by jailed republican guerrillas vigtlance is especially sharp against possible bomh attacks by the Irish Republican Army (IRA) who have pierced royal security before. But the main fear is that of the lone assassin uncoocerned about his own fate.

Last month a teenager mingling with the crowds in the mall, part of the route on the wedding day, fired blank pistol shots at the queen as she rode on horseback to a military ceremocy. And it was lone attackers who shot and wounded President Reagan in Washington and the Pope in Rome earlier this year despite massive security efforts, Informed government sources say London police chiefs are deeply concerned by the impossibility of protecting those involved in the wedding.

Only if the royal family reduced its public appearances, which it refuses to do, could full protection he guaranteed Instead, on July 29, Prince Charles, Lady Diana, the queen and Prince Philip and many other royal family members and guests will travel to and from St. Paul's in open horse-drawn coaches. They will pass within yards of thousands of people lining the route and inevitably will remember past attacks on the royal family.

In 1979, the queen's close cousin Earl Mountbatten was killed when a bomh planted on his cahin cruiser by the IRA exploded off the west coast of Ireland. Five vears earlier Prince Charles's sister, Princess Anne, narrowly escaped a kidnap attempt when a gunman held up her car in the mall, a central London avenue. Her personal detective was shot and wounded before the assail-

But even last month's incident, when the gun-toting youth came within 10 yards of the queen failed to shake her determination not to retreat into bullet-proof limousines. So the police are trying to eliminate as much of the risk as possible.

One of their first steps was to inspect every building which adjoins the route to the cathedral and get lists from the occupants of all people due to be inside on the wedding

The lists are being carefully checked against police records for suspicious characters to enable police to identify any unaccounted-for peopl in the huildings on the day itself.

According to Deputy Assistant Commissioner John Radley of The Metropolitan Police, operational commander of wedding security, police will also be stationed on roof-

After his wedding Charles plans to continue sports

By Andrew Warshaw

LONDON, (AP) - Beause of his love for dangerous spons like steeplechasing and scuba diving, Prince Charles is known as "action man" in the British press. As he approacheshis July 29 marriage to Lady Diana Spencer, the 32-year-old heir to the throne shows little sign of leating up.

Unlike those bridegrooms who renounce their bachelor habits, Charles seems intent on carrying on. Three days before going to the altar, he plans to join England's in ternational polo team at Windsor in a match against Spain. His one concession to caution will be a polo helmet with face visor.

The prince sets a wicked pace. Straight from a troubled trip to New York last month where he was heckled by pro-Irish Nationalist demoostrators, Charles arrived at Buckingham Palace, jumped into a helicopter and piloted himself to Portsmouth where he joined ex-King Constantine of Greece and went skindiving at the wreck of a tudor warship.

Despite two heavy falls and a bloody nose last March from the back of his steeplechase horse Charles returned to racing at Ascot this month for a charity event, His mother, Queen Elizabeth II, is concerned that her son might injure himself, and his decision to keep playing polo is unlikely to please Lady Diana, who wants him to give up the sport, according to the May, Sun Newspaper.

His 20-year-old bride does not share the royal's love of horses. She fell off one and broke her arm when nine years old and lost her interest in riding.

At Wimbledon, Lady Diana told women's singles champion Chris Evert Lloyd that Charles hirdlyiezjusits still, although she hopes to calm him down after their marriage. Whereas the prince is rated among the hest polo players in the country, his horse racing experience is minimal and therefore his risk of injury greater. He says he is determined to ride as an amateur in next year's presigious Grand National, toughest steeplechase of them all. After his tumbles, the staunchly monarchist Daily Express beseeched the prince to give up the "perilous pastgatume." The prince was undeterred. "It's part of the great British way of life, and none of the other sports I've done bears any comparison," said Charies, who has said he hates heing called "action man."

German minstrels must play by the rules

By David Lewis

BONN, -- Germany's wandering minstrels are being made to play by the rules. Street musicians dusting their guitars or polishing their mouth organs for a lucrative season in the Federal Republic will face a growing number of rules and regulations.

A law passed in Hamburg has banned buskers from the city center after business people protested against what they called nerve-deadening singing and rythms. A magistrate in Dortmund, saying he wanted to protect non-revolutionary citizens, fined a busker 40 marks (about $17) for singing about onclear power and housing shortages.

And in Munich, traditionally a popular center for latter-day minnesaenger (balladeers) from all over Europe, a pressure group is campaigning vigorously against oolse terrorism. In many parts of the country, buskers are subject to local laws curbing performance times and requiring them to seek official permits before playing.

Even in Bonn, where neither city authorities or buskers complain of problems, detailed regulations govern street musicianship. City authorines distinguish between those who are trying to live from their talent. and more amateur musicians who take to the street only occasionally.

We understood there are people who sometimes feel an urge to stand up and perform, and then we turn a blind eye," sentor city official Wolfgang Schloemer says. But the professionals are still supposed to present themselves at city hall every morning and pay five marks ($2) to be licensed under various laws on sound pollution and public order. The city licenses four or five musicians a week in high season, but many others seem to slip easily through the bureaucratic net. Two page students playing jazz guitar recently on the streets of Bonn had oever heard of the permit system or of a rule forbidding more than half an hour's performance io any one

Christian Barthels, a 15-year-old who entertains the local populace with a mixture of his own compositions and ballads such as 'Streets of London," wasn't sure whether he needed an official permit or not.

Even though he has busked for two years to supplement his pocket money, he has never come into conflict with the authorities, "The biggest problem I have is older people telling me to dear off and beg somewhere else," Christian says. "But I don't look on it as begging — people don't have to listen to

Despite the many regulations, West German authorities have not yet gone so far as to test prospective street musicians for the quality of their musie.

Io London last year, buskers wishing to perform in the restored former vegetable market of Covent Garden had first to undergo auditions held by the Greater London Council.

"That's an absurb idea," said Schloemer. "If they're any good, they'll survive. And if not, they just won't earn any money and they'll give up."

Not everyone takes his laissez-faire view, however, as that political lyricist in Dortmund found out. He took his case to a higher court, and had the fice recinded, but the authorines did not let the matter rest. He was immediately prosecuted again, this time for using an amplifier - without the required

lowed by U.S. warship destruction of Japan-Andrea Doria claims another life; new treasure search planned soon

By Blaine Harden

WASHINGTON, (WP) - The treasureladen Andrea Doria, an Italian luxury liner that sank 25 years ago off Nantucket Island after a collision that took 51 lives, recently claimed the life of a bank vice president from Westchester County, N.Y., who had gone diving in search of souvenirs.

The body of John Barnett, 40, was recovered by his diving partners at a depth of 180 feet on the hridge of the massive, rusning wreck. The Andrea Doria sank in 240 feet of water about 50 miles south of Nantucket. Barnett was one of scores of adventurers and treasure bunters who bave descended into the cold, murky, shark-infested waters that surround the Andrea Doria.

They have gone in search of the $1.1 million in cash in the ship's vault and thousands of dollars worth of sculpture, silverware, Chinz and painting scattered throughout the first-class section.

Elaborate plans have been proposed since the sinking to raise the 39,500-ton, 697-foot ships by using millions of miniature golf balls and injections of plastic foam. Expensive salvage attempts have been foiled because almost all of the ship's treasures are on the starboard side, which is virtually inaccessible against ocean floor. Two additional million-dollar treasure hunts, including one by film-maker and department-store heir Peter Gimbel, are scheduled this summer.

Barnett, a marketing vice president for Cinbank in New York City and a licensed diving instructor who has been diving since he was 16 years old, was returning to the Andrea Doria for the second consecutive year when he died.

"My father took two weeks off of work to go back to Andrea Doria. He wanted to get the ship's steerring wheel (the helm) and some artifacts for his collection, to put on his wall," said Steve Barnett, 17, the victim's oldest son. Barnett was married and had four Police in Montauk, N.Y., where Barnett's hody was brought for an autopsy, said the victim was one of five experienced amateur scuba divers who took a 46-foot cabin cruiser to the dive site. Detective Van Quick said Barnett failed to surface with his diving partner after the first dive of what was a "pleasure" excursion, not a salvage expedition. The cause of death has not been determined, according to the Suffolk County Medical Examiner's Office.

"It is incredibly dangerous for anybody to make a scuba dive for the Andrea Doria from the surface," according to Boh Hollis, a deep-sea diver from San Leandro, Calif., who eight years ago tried and failed to recover treasure from the ship.

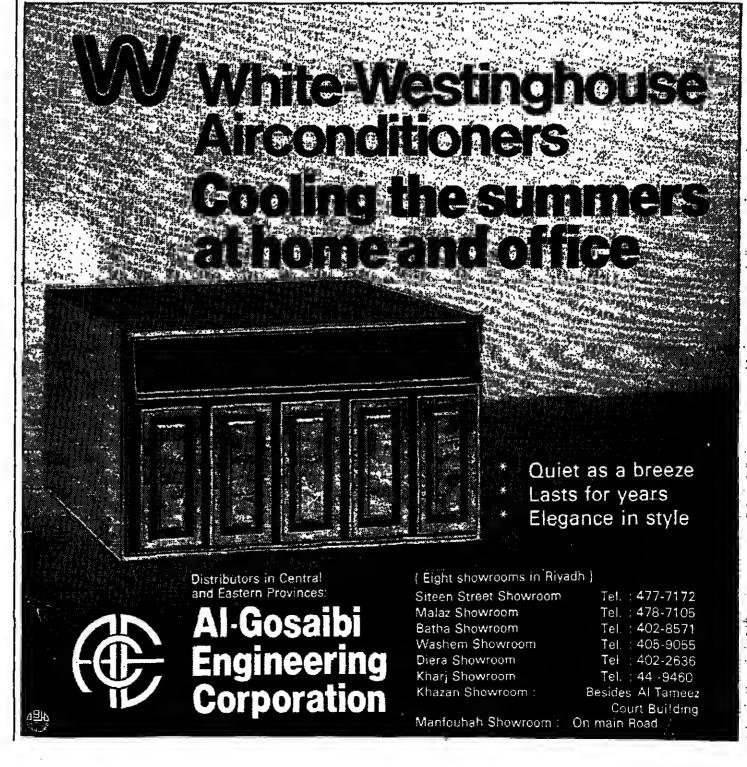

Barnett's party used scuba equipment that gave them only enough air to spend about 20 minutes at the ship. The rest of the air was required for the descent and 45 minutes of decompression on a slow ascent.

"You have to be very experienced, in very good shape and dive in very controlled conditions in those waters," Hollis said. He said strong currents and visibility of about five feet make it extremely hazardous near the ship, which is draped with fishing nets that have snagged on the Andrea Doria from passing trawlers io the frequently fished waters.

I think sport diving on the Andrea Doria is ridiculous," Hollis said. A team of divers made the first beavily financed salvage attempt in 1973 using the "saturatin diving technique," which keeps divers under deepsea pressure for the entire period of their dive. For 9 1/2 days, Hollis and two other divers moved from a pressurized shipboard compartment to a diving bell and then to the waters surrounding the Andrea Doria.

Hollis' expedition was aborted when divers found themselves unable to move through dehris in the mangled ship to compartments where the money and other valuables supposedly are located.

Gimbel, according to Hollis, has developed a plan to use cranes and other equipment to pull the ship apart and reach the treasure.

Nicklaus stages magnificent recovery

SANDWICH, England. July 18 (API -Bill Rogers had the lead, Tom Watson was in position and, almost incredibly, Jack Nicklaus still had an outside shot at the title Friday after two rounds of the 110th British Open did just that. He played a round of 66, four under par and matching the record on the Royal St. George's Golf Club course, stretching 6,829 yards through knee-deep hav and rolling dunes beside the English Channel.

That was 17 shots better, just one away from a stroke-a-hole improvement, over that shattering, career-worst 83 he had in the first round. And, at 149, he was 11 strokes off the balfway pace set by the skinny Rogers. Watson, the Masters champion and defending titleholder here insisted it was just within in Nicklaus' range. He can win from there," Watson said. "It isn't probable, hut it's poss-

Rogers also tied the course record, but he held a share of it only for a couple of hours before an obscure British dub pro, G.J. Brand, broke the mark with a late-afternoon 65 that included a hole in one on the 165vard 16th hole. He was at 143.

Rogers' 66 was a thing of consistency, a trait that has become a personal trademark of the man who was, almost inevitably, dubbed "Buck" hy his fellow American tourists.

He did not make a bogey. He missed only three greens. And, in two rounds, he has yet to venture into the deep rough. "I love this course," Rogers said after posting his 138 total, two strokes under par. "It seems to be built for my game, in that the premium is keeping the ball in the fairway. "I feel pretty good about my game and I think I should be right there in the thick of things at the end."

His good friend Ben Crenshaw, with whom he is sharing living accommodations at a nearby club and with whom he will play in Saturday's third round, and 31-year-old English pro Nick Job shared second at 139. Crenshaw, who longs for the one major title he needs to confirm his stature in the game, had a 67 despite bogeys on two of the last three holes. Joh shot 69.

Bernhard Langer of West Germany, a regular on the European tour, was at 140 after a 67. He was followed by Sam Torrance of Britain at 69-141. Watson, with a 69, Tony Jacklin of England, former winner of this title. David Graham and Mark James of England were very much in contention at 142, only four back with 36 holes to go.

"It was a good, solid round of golf," said Watson, who spiced his round with a 22-foot putt for an eagle-3 on the seventh hole. "I much more satisfied with the way I played." said Watson, who is chasing a fourth British Open title. "I have a lot more confidence going into the last two days. I'm in a good frame of mind. And when I'm in a good frame of mind, I usually play pretty well."

James had a second round 72. Jacklin and Graham, won the American Open Championship last month, had 71s. Arnold Palmer, the 51-year-old living legend who won the U.S. seniors title earlier this week, was given a 4 p.m. starting time and slipped to a 74 and a 146 total.

The 24-year-old Stanger, former threetime Arizona Amateur Champion who has yet to win a title since turning pro four years ago, shot a second straight 2-under-par 70 for ber share of the top spot.

Caponi, who already has won three titles this year, including the LGA Championship, shot a 3-under-par 69. U.S. aide acts to resume baseball talks WASHINGTON, July 18 (R) - U.S.

Labor Secretary Ray Donovan told representatives of major league baseball players and club owners Friday to begin round-the-clock negotiations in an effort to settle a 36-day-old strike by players.

He asked players' association negotiator Marvin Miller and owners' representative Ray Grebey to come to Washington for the talks. "I bope that both players and owners will understand that a failure to resolve this strike will be kick in the teeth to the American people,"

"Unless there is a change in attitude on both sides, then I don't think we'll see any more basehall this year and then the players and owners are going to have something really important to worry about -

Negotiations to resolve the strike have so far made no progress despite the efforts of a federal mediator. The key issue in the dispute is the amount of compensation a cluh should receive when it loses a player

Earlier Thursday the talks fell apart as management's Player Relations Committee rejected a proposal to submit the issues to binding arbitration.

Gildemeister fought off one hreak point to win the seventh game of the third set and took the lead with a cross court backhand past Alexander.

Alexander then fell behind 0-30 on his next service and got the next point. But he hit a hackhand long, making the score 15-40 and lost the match when Gildemeister rocketed a forehand passing shot to Alexander's back-

Alexander sat out most of last year and much of this year with a serious back injury and made it into the tournament by winning three qualifying matches last weekend. In an earlier quarterfinal match, Bernard

Fritz overcame a bad back and second set deficit to defeat unseeded Charlie Fancutt of Australia, 6-2, 6-4. Fritz, ranked twelfth in France and 220th in the world, had trailed 4-2 in the final set. In Friday afternoon's other third-round matches, 10th-seeded Jose-Luis Damiani of Uruguay survived a 7-6 (13-11), 0-6, 6-0 battle with unsceded Andres Gomez of Ecuador and Angel Jimmez of Spain ousted Jay Lapidus of Princeton, N.J., 6-3, 6-3 in a meeting of unsecded players.

The 27-year-old Fritz, a seven-year pro from Marseillies, France, had to win three qualifying matches last weekend to even get into the tournament. He then knocked off eighth seeded Terry Moor in the first round and unseeded Mike Leach in the second round.

He also had to qualify in his previous tournament, but then burt his back in the opening round and defaulted. "If's not very well." he said of his back. "I can't serve very hard."

Leading 5-4 in the final set and 40-15 in the final game, Fritzhita deep lob that caught Fancut at the net. The Australian didn't even try to return it. Damiani, ranked 37th in the world, is Fritz's next opponent. It will be his first quarterfinal appearance of the year, Damiani won the marathon tiebreaker in the first set after wasting four set points when Gomez hit a forehand volley long. Damiani said he lost his concentration early in the second set when he argued with umpire Charley Beck, then turned his game around "100 percent" between sets.

Bright knock by Hughes

England loses three quick wkts.

LEEDS, July 18 (AFP) - David Gower launched an aggressive response after England slid into desperate trouble at 42 for three on the third morning of the third Test against Australia at Headingley here this morning.

He hit three crisp fours, to take the initiative away from the bowlers for the first time. and lift England to 78 for three by lunch. But they were still 323 away from Australia's total of 401 for nine and 124 short of avoiding the follow-on.

Terry Alderman created England's problems by getting Graham Gooch, still on his overnight 2, lbw, through a loose shot, with his first ball of the day, and dismissing Mike Brearley caught behind by Rod Marsh at 40. just when the captain and Geoff Boycott looked like stablising the innings.

Geoff Lawson put England in a still worse position by howling Geoff Boycott with a fast, unplayable ball in his first over. Brearley scored 10 and Boycott 12, the Yorkshireman falling 95 short of his target of 107 to become England's leading Test scorer. On Friday, Australian captain Kim Hughes hit a bright 89 as his team powered to 401 for Hughes was backed up by Graham Yallop (58) and Graham Marsh (28) as the tourists. already one-up in the six match series, set England a formidable target.

Former England captain 1an Botham. without a win in 12 matches in charge, was by C far the most successful England bowler. Clearly revelling in playing under Mike Brearley without the pressure of captaincy, Botham took six wickets for 95 runs. Graham Dilley took two for 78 despite struggling to find his line. England reached seven for no wicket in reply during the 10 minutes before the close of play. Botham's form was a boost for the England team. Not since Bombay 16 months ago, when he took 13 wickets for 106 and scored a century, has the all-rounder looked so sharp.

He bowled a marathon 22.2 overs as Australia slipped from 332 for four to 401 for nine before Kim Hughes declared. He claimed all five of those wickets in 16 overs after team. It was the 15th time in his career that Botham has taken more than five wickets and he richly served Friday's success.

Earlier, England had toiled for 165 minutes on a damp, miserable day in which the weather frequently interrupted the proceedings. Dilley's success against nightwatchman Ray Bright was the only bright spot for England.

Yallop, fighting for his Test place, then made a laborious, 58, while Hughes batted. 4 1/2 hours for his 89. When Botham started to move the ball wickets fell regularly.

Graham Gooch and Geoff Boycott saw out the last 10 minutes of play for seven, although five of the runs came from extras, Terry Alderman opening unhappily with two noballs and a wide.

Australian cricketers Rodney Hogg, Martin Kent and Steve Rixon, left out of the team for the Test plan to keep in practice by playing in local league matches Saturday.

Fast bowler Hogg is to play for Ramsbottom in the Lancashire League, while batsman Kent and reserve wicket keeper Rixon are to appear for Featherstone in the Yorkshire Council League.

eader Hinault keeps sparkling form

SAINT-PRIEST, France, July 18 (AFP) - French world champion Bernard Hinault was once again magnificent, winning his third French tour individual time trial in a row, the 46.5 km 22nd stage here Friday. Hinault, who has said he wants to he "the best" and is proving it, clocked 14 01:16.

Hinault also won the tour's prologue, which was a time trial. Besides what has become the daily drama of the overall leader's superiority, third overall Robert Alban of France, a known climber but not excepitonal on flat terrain, thrilled spectators by heading off no less a speedster than defending champion Joop Zoetemelk of the

Zoctemelk made his move to take third from Alban with a ninth place 1h04:16 time but Alban shocked everyone with an 11th place 1h04:30 time to stay a minute and 17 seconds ahead of the Dutchman in the stand-

Second overall Belgian Lucien Van Impe is now 14:34 minntes hehind Hinault and was fifth Friday, But Alban still faces a threat from Dutch and Belgians of the Raleigh team and will have a hard time fighting them off as the French tour goes from Auxerre to Fon-tenay on Saturday and from Fontenay to the Champs Elysees and its finish on Sunday. As for Hinault, he showed amply on Friday, his desire "to domy job well, thus always to try to he the best." When he learned on the 18th km that he was 10 seconds behind Belgian Daniel Willems, the man who had snatched Thursday's stage from him at the sprint, he scrunched down and pedalled so furiously that 1 kms later he was two seconds up on the Belgians pace. At the finish the champion had widened that margin to 37 seconds, giving a lesson to a Alban also showed championship qualities. In the Mulhous Time Trial he had finished 59th, 4:24 minutes behind Hinault and 2:40 behind Zoetemelk in 12th.

Zoetemelk, who was palced second overall five times, fourth twice, fifth and eight once each over 12 years in the tour, thought he could easily spurt past the Frenchman in the

But Alban started quickly and only yielded valuable seconds to Zoetemelk near the finish, proving, in the words of French cycling expert Raymond Polidor that "with real motivation, all cyclists are capable of surpassing themselves in time trials.

Zoetemelk beat him 14 seconds hnt Alban beat timetrial specialists Belgians Alfons de Wolf (12th) and Gery Verlinden (14th), Australian Philip Anderson (15th and Frane's Mariano Martinez (17th).

Willems who had vowed to beat Hinault at his Gonzalez in comeback bid Duran to fight Duran stepped away from what Carl King son of fight promoter Don King - calls "the actual place of work' - a boxing ring on the second floor of King's Boxing Camp Barn.

"I'm all right," he said in Spanish, making his way across the Barn's plywood floors and into the showers Thursday. There were no cheers and no boos. A small group of local fans gingerly approached the Panamanian hoxer for autographs. A few days ago, Duran arrived here from New York. Thursday, he was getting the feel of things. Six rounds of sparring were under his helt, and he appeared to feel good about a post-workout bout with reporters and a camera crew, which posted him in front of a grain harvester and Ohio corn fields for a filming

Duran is to face Nino Gonzalez Aug. 9 in Cleveland in a 10-round junior middleweight WBC fight. "He's ok," said Simon Smith, a Duran's sparring partner for five-years. "He has to get his weight down a little, that's all." Smith and Luis Resto, a New Yorker, had worked Duran into his characteristic reverie of "hings," "bams" "ee's" and other gutteral sounds that the boxer uses in the ring. At 30, Duran is still one of the winningest fighters ever. He has a 72-2 record. Duran admitted he's been virtually inactive since he became ill and quit in the eighth round of a welterweight title fight against Sugar Ray Leonard in New Orleans last Nov. 25th.

But he's still obsessed with Leonard, and he sees his fight with Gonzalez as a stepping stone to a Leonard rematch. "I'll fight Leonard anytime he decides to fight." Durrap said. "He must give me a return fight." The 21-year-old Gonzalez, a Puerto Rican-descended flash from Bayonne, New Jersey, is 24-1.

Duran's illness last November became a controversy in the sports world because the multimillion-dollar fight seemed to whimper unnecessarily to an early end. Duran said he was physically sick.

"If a jockey falls off a horse and hreaks his arm, he's back in the saddle after several months," he said. "It's the same with Duran said he now weighs "about 160 pounds. The junior middleweight limit is 155 pounds. "I have to get down a little, nothing more. I'm training very hard. I'm going after Leonard," he said. "I'll fight hard, and I'll win for myself," he said of the Gonzalez encounter, a non-title event.

Luis, put it this way: "As you get older, everything gets a little harder. He's at about 165 pounds. It's nothing for him to get down he's got almost a month."

Luis said that as Duran' 54-8, 34, he worries only about the Gonzalez fight. "I let him worry about Leonard," be said.

Meanwhile, World Boxing Association champion Mike Weaver will fight undefeated challenger James "Quick" Tillis Oct. 3 the Chicago area's first heavyweight title match since Ernie Terrell won the WBC crown over Eddie Machen in 1965.

The bout had been scheduled for Feh. 28 postponed when Weaver injured a hand dur-

Weaver 29, last fought Oct. 25, 1980, when he retained his title hy knocking out South Africa's Gerry Coetzez in the 13th round. The 6-1, 210-pound Weaver said he also looked forward to fights against World Boxing Council champion Larry Holmes and top heavyweight contender Gerry Cooney hefore retiring next year.

Weaver has a 23-9 career record with 16 knockouts. He gained the heavyweight crown March 31, 1980, when he beat WBA titleholder John Tate with 45 seconds left in the 15th

The 6-2, 218-pound Tillis, is 29-0 with 16 knockonts and is ranked second hy the WBA., and eighth by the WBC. He scored his biggest win Nov. 13, 1980, when knocked out then third-ranked Dimingo D'eLia in the fourth round at the international amphitheater

Indian wrests Asian chess title

MADRAS, India July 18 (AP) - T.V. Parameswaran of India defeated Ruehen Rodriguez of the Phillipines to win the Asian Masters Chess Circuit tournament here Saturday when the Filipino grandmaster failed to complete his moves in time.

Resuming their game, which was adjourned after 41 moves and five hours of play Friday, the game headed for a draw until Rodriguez himself was unable to play the compulsory 16 moves in one hour and completed only 14 moves.

The youthful parameswaran won $608 in prize money while Rodriguez and Raja Ravishekhar (India) who shared second place, won $350.

Meanwhile, a Soviet chess official criticized the World Chess Federation president Friday for "inconsistency" in a statement about the world championship match, Tass

Viktor Baturinski, vice chairman of the Soviet Chess Federation, said the statement issued Friday by FIDE President Fredrik Olafsson was "considerably different" from the one they agreed upon in July 11-12 talks in Amsterdam, the Soviet news agency said. Baturiuski said the FIDE statement on the match between defending Soviet champions. Anatoly Karpov and expatriate Viktor Korchnoi should have said that the definite starting date was Sept. 19.

Tight security awaits Springboks in Auckland

AUCKLAND, July 18 (R) — A leader of the movement protesting against the tour of New Zealand by South Africa's Springboks rughy team said Saturday there would be a "very vigorous" airport demonstration when the visitors arrive Sunday morning.

'We will be telling the Springboks when they hit the tarmac that they are not welcome in New Zealand, that we want them to get out as fast as they can,' protest organizer John Minto said.

Minto made his statement to reporters after a meeting with national police commissioner Boh Walton, organized in a lastminnte bid to cool mounting tension. The session took place only 12 hours before the Springboks' scheduled landing at Auckland international airport on an Air New Zealand flight from Los Angeles.

Walton said the meeting had cleared the air and he had assured the protest movement the police would act impartially during demonstrations. But Minto said: "I think there will be a lot of angry people around.

As the meeting took place between the police commissioner and the delegation from the movement known as Halt All Racial Tours (HART), the airport was being kept under close police surveillanve. Several hundred police, including homb detection experts, were reported to be involved.

The Springboks were to he met by an official of the New Zealand Rughy Foothall Union (NZRFU) and then flown almost immedaitely to the east coast town of Gisborne, venue of teir first match next Wednesday. NZRFU chairman Ces Blazey will officially welcome the Springhoks when they land in Gisborne.

Latest opinion tours indicate that most

New Zealanders now oppose the two-month tour. The government of Prime Minister Robert Muldoon has urged the NZRFU to cancel the visit, but refused to step in and stop

The government's refusal to stop the tour has led to increasing international pressure on the aggressive but astute prime minister, who faces a difficult general election in November.

So far he has refused to compromise on the principle of the free association for sportsmen without political interference. This has prompted determined warnings from antiapartheid groups that they will take civil disohedience to the limits of the law during demonstrations aimed at forcing the government to halt the tour.

No one is sure how far the anti-tour groups will go, but the organizer of HART in Gishorne is confident the tourists will get no further than the local ground.

A Gishorne schoolteacher and local HART organizer, Laurie Harrison, told a television interwiew the depth of the town's feeling against the tour would be made evident hefore and during the game on Wednesday. "opposition is growing continuously in this town to the tour and we will make sure it does not go ahead," Harrison said,

The latest polls show that the level of opposition has risen to 54 percent from 51 percent in May, hut that support for the visitors has also grown to 34 percent from 32

Meanwhile, the South African rugby Union team has left for Auckland, New Zealand, ignoring 12 demonstrators chanting 'sports yes — apartheid no' as the players checked in at Los Angeles airport Friday.

Aussies

BRISBANE, Australia, July 18 (AFP) -The tough Australians surprised nohody by defeating the French Rughy League side 17-2 in the second Test match of the tour

But the French confounded their critics by playing tenaciously in defence and succeeding in applying some light hraking to the Australian machine. After their 43-3 roasting in the first Test on July 4 at Sydney the French worked hard to contain the rampaging Kangaroos,

But the technical superiority and undouhted weight advantage of the Australians meant the French resistance could only be temporary,

The Australians scored first through Cronin from a penalty kick and powerful winger Terry Fahey, who was man of the match, scored the first of his two tries four minutes later. Cronin scored two more penalty goals, one from 20 yards at a slight angle and the second from ten yard in front of the goal to give Australia a 9-0 lead at half-time.

Fahey scored his second try early in the second half and Rod Morris hroke through for Australia's third try at the end of a devastating move started by Fahey in which beat four defenders in a 40 yards charges.

France took their consolation two poin with a penalty goal through Andre Perez in the last ten minutes.

Most squeezes come readymade, but in some hands declarer must construct the position he requires to make the squeeze effective. Here is a typical case. West leads the king of diamonds and shifts to the king of spades, won by South with the ace. At a quick glance it seems that declarer must sooner or later lose a heart actually, on the bidding, he is a favorite to make the slam. West almost surely has five spades for his bids, and all that declarer requires in addition is for West to have the king of hearts. In that case, properly played, a squeeze is sure to develop nine tricks later and render West helpless. Proceeding on that basis, declarer enters dummy with a trump to the eight, ruffs a spade, then plays a trump to the nine and ruffs another spade. The purpose of the ruffs is to extract East's spades and so place the burden of guarding against dummy's nine solely on West.

When declarer now plays four more rounds of trumps, this becomes the position: North South leads his last trump and West is in bad shape. If he discards a spade, declarer discards a heart from dummy; if West discards a heart, declarer discards a spade from dummy. Either way South scores the last three trick and go down one, but tricks and makes the slam.

New policy unveiled U.S. allows free play to energy mart forces

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP) - The Reagan administration unveiled its national energy plan Friday, describing it as an affirmarinn of the policy that the free market and not the government should allocate the lloited States' energy resources.

Benard C. Rusche, special assistant to energy Secretary James Edwards, said the administration wanted to "put the government in the position where the people through their aggregate choices in the market can set the direction.'

He said at a news conference that the govemment's main thrust will be "removing federal barriers ... reducing regulation" to allow the marketplace to set the course, even in times of energy emergencies.

The plan says national energy policy should break "cleanly and candidly" with what was an "overwhelming" emphasis on regulation in previous energy policy. It also calls for market forces to replace government subsidies in the development of alternate fuel SOUTCES. The law requires thet a national energy plan be submitted to Congress every two years. J. Hunter Chiles, director of the energy department's office of policy, planning and analysis, noted that its ritle is now the national energy policy plan instead of simply the national energy plan.

"This document does represent a policy, not a rigid plan," he emphasized. "The policy is basically to allow the free market to locate energy resources."

While the plan virtually reverses the policies of former President Jimmy Carter. its most significant change was in deemphasizing a cut in oil imports as the major goal of U.S. energy policy. "Achieving a low level of U.S. oil imports at any cost is not a major criterion for the nation's energy security and economic health," the plan said.

Stressing "an international dimension" to oil vulnerability and the U.S. position as "reliable trade parmer," the plan says:
"Damage to other free world economies inevitably affects the United States as well, so it is important that we eccooperate with partners.

'We cannot entirely protect ourselves from disruptions in the world energy market by reducing our own dependence on imports and trying to isolate ourselves."

That alters the major U.S. energy goal first set by President Richard Nixon in his "project independence" following the 1973 Arab oil embargo.

However, Rusche stressed that the Reagan administration still wanted to cut imports, noting it was merely saying such a cut should not be the sole hesis for energy policy. Exporting Countries (OPEC) will push up output to ease the strain on their finances caused by falling sales in recent months.

This should keep demand and supply in line and prevent a new surge in prices, the experts suggested. They were commenting on latest statistics on world oil output compiled by British Petroleum, the world's fifth largest oil company, which showed total oil con-sumption fell 3.9 percent in 1980 to 61.7 million barrels per day (BPD).

The decline in consumption in noncommunist nations was even faster, dropping by 5.2 percent to 49 million BPD. BP said. The increasing oil glut and resistance to high prices by consumers bad pushed consumption down this year to around 47 million BPD, the experts said.

But consumption appeared to bave reached its trough and economie recovery was likely to bring il up to around 50 million BPD in non-communist nations, the experts Latest calculations showed that more than half the fall in consumption following the oil price shocks of 1973-74 and 1979-80 was due to a sluwdown in economie growth. The remaining fall was due to conservation and switches away from oil.

Substitution of other fuels for oil was now well-entrenched and would help curb any new surge in oil demand and prices, they said.

Financial Roundup

Riyal rates continue to firm

JEDDAH, July 18 - The American dullar closed strong in New York Friday night after holding it ground in Europe the same day. The immediate effect of this was the release of the U.S. money supply figures which showed a rise of nearly $1 billion for the past reporting week. This is bigger than expected and the markets feared that the Federal Reserve Bank policy of high interest rates will continue for some time to Locally, riyal deposit rates continued to firm and dealers reported rises in all tenors taking the one-month rate over 17 percent for the first time in the past 10 days. Spot riyal against the dollar was also ectively traded with some demand reported by the Bahrain OBU's offshore banking units.

On Friday, on the European markets the dollar began to rise in some fairly heavy trading, and by European close the American currency had recovered most of its losses egainst other European currencies despite some sizable central bank interventions in support of national currencies hy the European central hanks. The Bridsh pound continued to be erratic end averaged 1.8730 for the day, but falling to 1.8700 at close in New York. Continuing uncertainries over British social unrest seems to have unsettled investors seeking to go in for sterl-

In other currency news, the German mark everaged at 2.4700 levels on European bourses, but the mark fell further against the dollar to close at 2.4390 in New York. Similar falls were also recorded hy the Swiss end Jepanese currencies, with the former closing at 2.0925 levels, compared to nearly 2.06 only a few days ago, and the yen closing at 232.40 - the lowest yet against the dollar. The markets have noted that the Jepanese Central Bank has made some efforts at yen support by selling dollars at 230 levels, but that the actions of the Central Bank have been ineffectual and the yen has slipped further against the dullar. The French franc, surprisingly enough, was the steadiest currency against the dullar. clusing in New York at 5.7800 levels after reaching 5.58 mid-week.

The European currency falls were a reflection of continuing financial worries about the future course of U.S. dollar interest rates. There were some brief indications this past mid-week that the U.S. Central Bank - the "Fed" - was pumping money into the system and this brought down Fed funds rates from 18 1/2 percent levels to 16 percent by Wednesday. However, the trend was reversed by weekend and with the release of the mnney supply figures showing a rise of nearly $7 hillion in the MI-B meesument (cesh, checking, plus interest-bearing "now" checking accounts), it seems likely that the Fed will continue with its present tight monetary policy. Euro-dollar deposit rates firmed as a consequence with one-manth deposit rates now being quoted at 18 1/4 - 18 1/4 percent.

Rival deposit rates also went up with one-month JIBOR rates averaging 16 1/8 - 17 1/8 percent on opening, but rising to 17 - 17 1/2 percent by mid-day in the face of the strong dollar. One-year rates also went up from 15 %- 15 % to 15 % - 16 % percent. Local dealers reported some fairly active dealing taking place ahead of the European opening Monday taking short-term funds to 17 - 17 1/2 percent. Spot riyal opened at 3.41 10-20, but very soon rose to levels of 3.41 25-40 in face of strong dollar demand both from local banks and the

U.S. optimistic of accord on broad issues non-interest bearing reserves whenever

By William P Bray Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, July 18 - The top echeion of imancial and trade spokesmen for the United States government turned out this week to say they expect fairly uniform 'agreement on broad issues' which will be discussed at the Ottawa economic summit which opens Sunday evening in Canada.

U.S. economic policies are certain to be the major item on the agenda for those countries attending the summit which include the United States, West Germany, United Kingdnm, France, Italy, Canada and Japan. All nations attending recognize "an inescapable reality' that western nations' 'are' increasingly interrelated," said Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig in a press conference briefing Thursday afternoon.

"We either hang together or hang separately," Haig told reporters. "While there may be differences in the choices of policy instruments, there is no uniform commitment to the objectives," be added.

Haig stressed that the summit will concern "broad areas of international and economic relations," but there is et least one very specific economic issue on the minds of the foreign leaders who will attend the conference - high interest rates. Their concern is over the affects U.S. interest rates are baving on their own economies.

This issue was addressed Wednesday by Paul A Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and chief regulator of the domestic supply of U.S. dollars. Volker said that the use of monetary, fiscal and other restraints to reduce inflation is something the United States "stands firmly behind."

The Fed chairman concurred with Haig by predicting that "there will be a general endorsement of the broad purposes and objectives of the U.S. economic policies" by all countries attending the summit. Volcker said that "short-term" problems will produce such "long-term" benefits as reduced inflation and restored growth through "real" increases in productivity. The short-term problems in the United States - higher interest rates, tight loan policies at commercial banks and some forms of allocated credit - have had some causal impact on the "short-term" problems of other countries - fluctuating exchange rates, large shifts in capital from European to American banks end trade imhalances.

"Most of the foreign leaders with whom I bave talked readily agree that it is in their countries fundamental interest, as well as ours, that the United States make significant progress against inflation," Volcker said.

It was Volcker who spearheaded the effort of the U.S. Federal Reserve begun in October, 1979, to bold tight reigns on the growth of the U.S. money supply. Insulated from political pressures by virtue of 14-year appointments to the board, Fed governors successfully pushed for legislation which allows greater control of the domestic supply of U.S. dollars. This, in effect, expanded the number of banks required to bold funds in Congress to cut the growth of spending by the U.S. government. This is viewed as being very important by Reagan. In recent years, the U.S. treasury bas entered the private financial markets to a greater extent in order to finance deficit hudgets of the U.S. federal government. In so doing, they have offered higher interest rates on U.S. government bonds and securities. In effect, this has added to the pressure of the Federal Reserve Board's restrictions on the growth of the domestie supply of dollars. In theory, if Reagan's efforts to get Congress to balance the U.S. budget succeed. interest rates will subside as the U.S. government stops borrowing money in private

Nearly all of the nations which will attend the Ottawa summit face similar difficult problems and policy choices in their own economies. External influences on their own interest rates and exchange - "short-term" phenomena by Volcker's estimation inevitably raise new complications for some, just as external developments complicate U.S. policy-making.

Du Pont favored to win the Conoco battle NEW YORK, July 18 (R) - Mobil, the second largest oil company in the United States, has arranged a $6 billion credit line to back its fight to acquire Conoco, the country's ninth largest oil company.

But there is considerable opinion on Wall Street that the big Du Pont chemical company holds the lead in the bidding.

Some analysts believe Mobil's $7.7 billion offer for Conoco, which is being pursued by two other corporate giants, could drive the price for the company above $100 a share. The stock closed at just under $88 Friday on the New York stock exchange.

Mobil told Reuters it had arranged a credit for $6 billion with a group of international banks by Citibank in what was believed to be the largest loan arranged so far in connection with the Conoco bidding.

The analysts suggested, however, that Mobil was more likely to run foul of laws designed to promote competition than either of its two rivals - Du Pont and Seagram Company, the big Canadian concern. "The justice department won't stand for it," said Thomas Brown, of the brokerage house Butcher and Singer.

A justice department spokesman said the proposed acquisition of Conoco by Mobil would receive close scrutiny. Brown, an energy analyst who also closely follows Du Pont, said he believed the chemical company was leading in the bidding battle because it would have fewest anti-monopoly problems.

Du Pont has offered $7.5 billion in stock and cash for all of Conoco's stock, while Seagram has offered to acquire 51 percent for $85 a share, up from its original offer of $73 e share for 41 percent of the company. Oil industry analysts believe Texeco, the third largest U.S. oil company, is still interested in Conoco. At Conocc's request, Teaxco two weeks ego informally discussed an all-casb merger deal with Conoco. Texaco said on July 7 it bad made no offer to Conoco, and since then the company has kept a low profile. Discussing the anti-mnunpoly aspects Mobil acknowledged both it and Conoco were engaged in production, refining and marketing of petroleum, ownership of coal reserves and certain areas of the uranium and chemical businesses. It maintained, bowever, that areas of overlap fitted within justice department guidelines set in 1968 and should not violate the law. Mobil said the fact the guidelines had been in effect since they were issued by the Johnson administration strengtened its position that a merger between Mobil and Conoco should not encounter anti-monoploy difficulties. But some analysts and Conoco itself do not fully agree with Mobil.

Conoco said in a statement the Mobil bid raised substantial anti-monopoly and other public policy issues of national importance. Conoco, which has endorsed Du Pont's bid, said it could not give a formal response to the Mobil offer until its board reviewed the proposal early next week and the necessary documents had been filed with the securities and exchange commission.

Energy analyst Stephen Maresca of Argus Research Corporation said the anti-trust (anti-monopoly) aspect was the best thing Du Pont had going for it.

"I just think there would be more pressure on the justice department to try and stop a Conoco-Mobil merger than a Conoco-Du Pont merger," Maresca said. Paul Miles of the Cyrus J. Lawrence brokerage house also doubted whether the government would permit Mobil to acquire Counco. "It would create a large entity in the resources area and I find it hard to believe the United States would allow it," he said.

But Sanford Margosbes of Bache Halsey Stuart Sheilds offered a different view. He said Mobil was "a tough competitor thal doesn't like to lose, and it has a great depth of financial resources with which to wage a takeover battle."

Margoshes also said it was conceivable Texaco might enter the fray, and that bidding for Conoco could go as $115 a share. The Bache analyst said Texaco would benefit from a takeover of Conoco as this would enable it to boost its domestic oil and natural gas reserves.

Texaco has reduced estimales of its domestie gas reserves for each of me last three years after engineering studies showed them to be lower than was earlier believed.

Margoshes said Mobil might bave difficulty with anti-monopoly authorities, but he added that the company might be using its bid as a test to see bow much resistance it encounters. Even if Mobil does not win the Conoco battle, it probably wants to test the waters and hopeful establish some type of precedent,"

The composition of the oew Politburo and secretariat will have to be known before there can he any guess as to its political tendency. It could he openly reformist in the manner of Rakowski, who electrified party members with his speech in favor of renewal, or it could he conservative yet amenable to reform in the manoer of Stefan Olszowski, a hard-liner who receotly moved closer to the recewal

The party's conception of its role as a "guide" may well have been spelled nut hy Rakowski. The chief Soviet delegate to the Polish congress said Friday Poland could safeguard its sovereignty only if it remained allied to the Soviet Union, Tass news agency reported from Warsaw.

Polithuro memher Viktor Grishin was quoted as saying Moscow was sure that those who were dedicated to friendship between the two countries would not give way or abandon their ideological positions. Speaking to memhers of the Polish-Soviet Friendship Society Friday, Grishin said Poland could only develop as sovereign Socialist state in "the close-knit family" of Communist countries and in alliance with the Soviet Union. "There is no other way," he was quoted as saying. "You can have no doubts that this is the invariable stand of our party." According to Soviet televisioo, Grishin said there was a relatively small oumber of people in Poland who opposed the idea of frieodship with Moscow and tried to poison the public consciousness

"But to understand this does not mean understimating the dangerous activity of enemies of our friendship and common goals. Grishin said. His speech reflected what diplomats saw as a key Soviet preoccupatioo with ensuring at the very least that Poland remains a reliable member of the Warsaw Pact military alliance.

The generally low-key Soviet reporting of the congress has seemed aimed at dispelling any impressioo of teosion between the two countries following the crisis in relations last mnnth when Moscow sent a harsh letter of criticism to the Polish party. Soviet television's correspondent in Warsaw, Alexander Kaverznev, said Friday congress delegates were unanimous that close cooperation and partnership with the Soviet Union was essen-

Clearly hinting at Moscow's thinking, he said there was a general conviction that the Polish party should keep the country's econnmie development under its control. Soviet reports of the voting at the congress have not explained details of the secret, multi-candidates ballot which is unprecedeoted in Soviet bloc history.
